Royal Paper Products, Inc. Launches a Green Division.

Leading industry supplier of over 1000 disposable products servicing the foodservice, hospitality and janitorial industries launches Envirolines™, a new division of Royal Paper Products.

EXTON, PA. – Royal Paper Products is proud to introduce Envirolines™, a Green Division of Royal Paper, dedicated to providing the most environmentally-friendly food preparation and service products available on the market.

“The Envirolines™ line includes both sustainable as well as compostable products, perfect for use in professional kitchens and dining establishments, as well as in the home.”

“These products are the premium choice in environmentally-friendly disposables, carefully designed and created to live up to our exacting environmental standards,” says B.S. Lee, PH.D., Supply Chain Director for Royal Paper Products.

Manufactured using simple, clean and organic processes, Envirolines will be the brand of choice for environmentally-conscious foodservice operators. Unlike traditional institutional brands in the market, Envirolines will deliver the highest product quality and packaging standards, while helping to provide a solution to an environmental problem that has been decades in the making.

In the coming months, Envirolines will launch several new product lines, including compostable wooden cutlery, 100% recycled paper board take out boxes, biodegradable tableware, as well as various cleaning and scouring products.

“These organic products aren’t only better for the environment – they’re better for our consumers, too. It is our hope that soon, these sustainable products will no longer be a premium option, but will become the first choice for every kitchen,” Lee explains.
